

Malala Yousafzai

Co-Recipient of Nobel Peace Prize 2014

“A global symbol for girls’ rights and global education”

Malala Yousafzai is an activist for female education and the youngest person ever to win a Nobel Peace Prize. She began her campaign for education at age 11 when she anonymously blogged for the BBC about life under the Taliban in Pakistan’s Swat Valley. Inspired by her father’s activism, she soon began advocating publicly for girls’ education, attracting international media attention and awards.

TOPICS:

- o Girls' Rights and Global Education
- o Human Rights
- o Ethics and Values
- o Social Issues
- o Malala - My Story

LANGUAGES:

She presents in English.

PUBLICATIONS:

2013 I am Malala: The Girl Who Stood Up for Education and Was Shot by the Taliban

IN DETAIL:

At age 15, Yousafzai was shot by the Taliban for speaking out. She recovered in the United Kingdom and continued her fight for girls. In 2013, she founded Malala Fund. A year later, she received the Nobel Peace Prize in recognition of her advocacy for 12 years of free, safe, quality education for every child. Malala completed a degree in Philosophy, Politics and Economics at Oxford University. In 2013 she spoke at the headquarters of the United Nations to call for worldwide access to education. The Times Magazine named her One of the Most Influential People and was awarded the EU’s prestigious Sakharov human rights prize.

WHAT SHE OFFERS YOU:

Malala brings awareness to world and business leaders to the social and economic impact of education. She empowers people to raise their voices, to unlock their potential and to demand change.

HOW SHE PRESENTS:

Her eye-opening message and her extraordinary courage make Malala Yousafzai an acclaimed ambassador for human rights and education.