

Sonya Barlow

Award-Winning Founder of Social Inclusion Network LMF Network

"A leading expert on diversity and inclusion"

Sonya Barlow is a Neurodivergent Award-Winning Founder of Social Inclusion Network LMF Network, the Best-Selling author of 'Unprepared to Entrepreneur', and BBC Presenter of The Everyday Hustle, highlighting stories of Asian entrepreneurs.

TOPICS:

- Entrepreneurship
- Technology and AI
- Failure and Resilience
- Gender Equality
- Inclusion
- Future of Work
- Diversity and Neurodiversity
- Moderator

LANGUAGES:

She presents in English.

PUBLICATIONS:

2021 Unprepared to Entrepreneur

IN DETAIL:

Sonya has been named among Europe's Top 50 women in tech, as well as Marie Claire's Future Shaper, UK Entrepreneur of the Year, and she was invited to Keynote at The House of Commons. She has worked with household brands such as Lloyd's banking group and Capital One on their tech podcast, led campaigns for HP, Rolls Royce, Logitech and LinkedIn. Sonya's background includes leading technology solutions across Europe, building transformative infrastructures in fintech and banking and leveraging teams to support tech-based solutions in the energy, telecoms and retail sectors. She has over 100,000 social connections and hosts stages at London Tech Week, Cogx and WebSummit. Sonya is building an AI-enabled tech app to connect professional women in the workplace, with the tagline "If LinkedIn and Bumble had a baby."

WHAT SHE OFFERS YOU:

Sonya's background in technology, business and travel enables her to globally support businesses in diversifying their workforce, share innovative solutions and advocate allyship throughout the workforce.

HOW SHE PRESENTS:

Sonya's presentations are engaging and captivating whilst relevant, informative, and provocative. Her multifaceted experiences and skills make her a valuable asset to businesses and organisations seeking positive change in these areas.